To Whom it may concern

During the recent annual JVC European Key Dealer Meeting at the Intercontinental Hotel in Athens, I had the pleasure of working closely and actively together with the staff at VISION on the above mentioned event.

The JVC KDM as it is better known is of strategic importance to JVC, as it is the first and best opportunity each year to showcase JVC state-of-the-art AudioVisual products to our key industry partners and media from across Europe.

From the first meeting onwards, VISION demonstrated a high quality of work, communication and on-site delivery. Communication with our Japanese design agencies was fast, effective and constructive both pre as well as during the KDM. Despite the short lead-times JVC had to impose on VISION and frequent changes in our designs, they were able to deliver and outstanding quality of work and always "went the extra mile" to ensure our expectations were met.

It was a great pleasure working with them, and have no reservations in recommending their services to any other company planning an international exhibition/conference in Greece.

It was a pleasure working with them and should we in the future return once again to Greece for the KDM, then we will be looking forward to working with them again
